The Government is committed to building a strong national innovation system, in recognition of the vital role innovation plays in productivity and economic growth, and in meeting the challenges Australia faces.

In this context, the Government has appointed an expert panel to review the national innovation system and the coherence and effectiveness of existing Government support for innovation.

The Panel will identify gaps and weaknesses in the innovation system and develop proposals to address them. In particular, it will:

- Identify a set of principles to underpin the role and participation of the public sector in innovation.
- Develop a set of national innovation priorities to complement the national research priorities, ensuring the objectives of research programs and other innovation initiatives are complementary.
- Identify regulatory and other barriers to innovation and recommend ways to minimise these.
- Examine the scope for simplifying and reducing program duplication and ensuring that any support provided is well-targeted and easy to access.
- Consider the appropriateness, effectiveness and efficiency of the Research and Development (R&D) Tax Concession Scheme in promoting innovation and make recommendations to improve innovation outcomes.
- Consider ways to improve the governance of the national innovation system to support higher expectations of government agencies and industry.
- Assess the appropriateness, effectiveness and efficiency of the Cooperative Research Centres (CRC) Program and make recommendations to improve innovation outcomes.

In conducting the review the Panel is to have regard to relevant reports and studies, including the Productivity Commission's Report on Public Support for Science and Innovation. The Panel is to consult nationally and provide a 'Green Paper' to the Government detailing policy options by 31 July 2008. The Green Paper will be released for public comment and used as the basis for the development of a Government 'White Paper'.

In addition to the Panel, three Working Groups were set up to examine particular areas of interest. Each Working Group provided input to the Panel for consideration in the final report.

Recognising the work already undertaken by the Productivity Commission in its report on Public Support for Science and Innovation the Working Group shall, within the context of the overall Review of the National Innovation System as a whole, provide input to the Review Panel by:

- Considering the current status of collaboration between various actors in the National Innovation System (firms, universities, research agencies (public and private), Government Departments) propose ways to strengthen such collaboration, having regard to:
 - both domestic and international collaboration
 - the role of venture capital
 - the role of intermediaries

Inter-governmental Working Group Terms of Reference

Tax and Review of the R&D Tax Concession Working Group Terms of Reference

- Considering options to improve industry access to and use of knowledge generated within universities, public sector research agencies, and organisations with substantial amounts of public funding, such as CRCs, including principles to govern the diffusion of publicly funded research.
- Evaluating the scope for public and private research partnerships to support comparative advantage in particular industries.
- Noting that the next CRC selection round has been suspended until the Government has considered the outcomes of the Review, assess the appropriateness, effectiveness and efficiency of the CRC Program within the spectrum of program options to support greater collaboration.

In addressing this, the Working Group will take account of the Government's stated intention of restoring public benefit as a key criterion for the establishment and operation of CRCs. In this context, the Working Group will assist the Review Panel by undertaking a comprehensive review that considers all aspects of the CRC Program. It will examine the overall strategic direction of CRCs, looking at the full range of issues, including governance and program design issues, the level and length of funding needed to support the program's objectives, as well as its overall scope and effectiveness.

In the context of the Review of the National Innovation System, the Working Group will act as a central point of liaison between the Commonwealth, State and Territory Governments, and representatives of local government, and respond to requests from the expert Panel conducting the Review.

The Working Group will also:

- Identify and assess the complex mix of current and proposed State, Territory and Commonwealth innovation support and assistance programs against agreed national innovation priorities
- Map these programs against the priorities and identify the extent to which these priorities are appropriately covered
- Examine the scope for simplifying support for business innovation and reducing duplication, so that it is easier for business to identify and access relevant programs
- Provide advice on a framework to ensure ongoing complementarity between State, Territory and Commonwealth programs; and
- Identify metrics and means of improving data collection and the ongoing measurement, evaluation and optimisation of outcomes.

The Review of the National Innovation System will specifically consider the role of the research and development tax concession scheme in promoting innovation. The Productivity Commission report on Public Support for Science and Innovation provides a solid foundation for the Working Group to evaluate the appropriateness, efficiency and effectiveness of the current scheme and, where appropriate, provide advice on the following design principles:

- That the tax concession be designed to encourage sustained growth in R&D activity in Australia and facilitate higher R&D intensity, which may generate greater spillovers.
- That the concession encourage international linkages and provide an incentive for multinational companies to undertake R&D in Australia.
- That the concession encourage collaboration by the business sector with universities and research agencies.

The Working Group will:

- examine the appropriateness of the current definition of research and development used for the tax concession;
- review the Tax Offset arrangements for small companies with a view to removing the perverse incentives resulting from the current eligibility threshold for R&D expenditure, while minimising the potential for abuse; and
- Examine other aspects of tax impacting on the concession.

The Working Group will also evaluate the efficiency, effectiveness and appropriateness of other tax instruments and measures for supporting innovation, including the Early Stage Venture Capital Limited Partnerships.

The evaluation of options should consider the impact of any changes on the growth of innovative firms, inwards investment and exports.

Review process

The Review commenced 22 January 2008 with the public announcement by the Minister for Innovation, Industry, Science and Research, the Hon Senator Kim Carr. An eleven-member Panel was established headed by Dr Terry Cutler. Four international experts were also nominated.

A Secretariat was set up to support the Panel and included staff from within the Department of Innovation, Industry, Science and Research as well as from outside bodies including the CSIRO, the University of Queensland and Queensland University of Technology.

The review held a series of consultations in each state and territory in the first half of March with over 1300 people attending.

The Expert Panel met 12 times between 5 February and 22 August 2008, including a two-day Innovation meeting 12-13 June 2008. A website at www.innovation.gov.au/innovationreview provided regular updates on the activities of the Panel.
