Thank you for emailing the Office of Senator Tim Ayres, Minister for Industry & Innovation and Minister for Science. This is an automatic response to indicate your email has been received by our team.

Please be aware that due to Senator Ayres's recent Ministerial appointment, we are receiving a high volume of emails. There may be a delay in getting back to you.

If you are emailing about an invitation, please send your email to invitations.ayres@industry.gov.au.

As a Senator for New South Wales, emails from NSW residents will be prioritised. If you're emailing from outside of NSW, your local member can be found here, and your State & Territory Senators can be found here.

If your email is regarding a specific policy issue, we will refer your request on to the relevant Minister. You can find the appropriate contact details here. Emails regarding the Industry, Innovation or Science portfolios will be dealt with as a priority.

Dear Mr Khuda

Thank you for your congratulatory letter of 17 June 2025 regarding my appointment as Minister for Industry and Innovation and Minister for Science. I apologise for the delay in responding. I am honoured by my appointment to this role, and I am excited about the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead.

I recognise AirTrunk's contribution to Australia's data centre ecosystem, and your commitment to building secure and resilient digital infrastructure. It is crucial that industry, businesses and everyday Australians can trust the way their information is being managed to drive technology adoption across Australia's economy.

Your correspondence highlights the importance of establishing robust digital infrastructure and investing in Australian industrial capability to deliver good jobs, promote Australia's economic resilience and drive productivity growth. These are all issues that are central to the Albanese Government's agenda. I am committed to working with industry to deliver on these objectives and position Australia as a world-leading digital economy.

It was an honour to be the first VIP visitor to AirTrunk's Johor Bahru facility in 2024, and I look forward to continued engagement with AirTrunk in my current role.

Thank you again for writing to me and passing along your congratulations.

Yours sincerely

Dear s 22

Thank you for your letter of 16 June 2025 regarding my appointment as Minister for Industry and Innovation and Minister for Science. I apologise for the delay in responding. I am honoured by my appointment to this role, and I am excited about the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead.

I welcomed Amazon Web Service (AWS)'s $20 billion investment in Australian data centre infrastructure. This is a good example of how government and industry can work together to directly support our vision of sovereign digital capability. Data centre infrastructure is essential for meeting Australia's increasing demand for cloud, 5G, and AI services. Strategic infrastructure investments will boost AI innovation, support long-term economic growth and enhance our global competitiveness. I also acknowledge AWS's ongoing direct investments in Australian renewable energy projects and your support for secure jobs for Australians.

Within government, AWS is helping to improve the value, reliability, and security of cloud services. Over 140 Commonwealth, state and territory public sector agencies currently use AWS to support service delivery in areas such as transport, health, education, and tax.

I appreciated meeting you and the s 22, on 6 June 2025. I was also pleased to learn that my colleague, the Hon Dr Andrew Charlton MP, Assistant Minister for Science, Technology and the Digital Economy, recently met with Amazon Web Services and visited the Amazon campus on his recent visit to the United States.

Thank you for writing to me passing on your congratulations.

Yours sincerely
