4. Additional briefings/roundtables/engagements

We will have a number of experts from across the company on different topics, including national security, safeguards and user wellbeing, copyright, infrastructure, AI applications and adoption, and technical research. We will aim to organize various briefings and roundtables across government and the broader Canberra ecosystem with these experts. We will also bring some of our Australian employees who can add their own voices about what this means for Australia from their perspective. We would welcome any suggestions for what would be most of interest, the best fora or venues, etc.

Hey s 22

Great to chat this week and hope you have a good meeting with Simon from the team tomorrow .

We promised to revert with some more information about next steps on the work being led by the Attorney-General on copyright. As you know, the Attorney General is currently consulting the Copyright and AI Working Group on three priority areas. The CAIRG is providing it's advice before the end of the year. If you or one of your team would like to discuss in more detail you can contact Jenna Priestly, Assistant Secretary, Commercial and Copyright Law Branch, Attorney-General's Department on s 22 @ag.gov.au.
