Dear EFA colleagues,

We wanted to alert you to questions that were asked at our appearance at Budget Estimates last evening and may be relevant ahead of EFA's appearance on Friday.

Senator Liddle asked a series of questions regarding the financial aspects of PsiQuantum's decision to relocate their site from Brisbane Airport to Moreton Bay Central and suggested that she would also direct these questions to EFA. These questions included:

- The proportion and dollar amount of Commonwealth funding that was directed towards the Brisbane Airport site (at 2:42, also from 2:24 more generally)
- If the milestone schedule and confirmations of completions of these could be tabled (from 2:57 onwards)

It may also be worth having on hand some lines around how the investment process works (compared to a grant process which the Senator was focussed on).

Other notable questions related to when the department was notified that PQ intended to abandon the Brisbane Airport location and how it was communicated, and the timeline of PQ's Brisbane Airport negotiations and their engagement with the Department of Infrastructure.

Please reach out if you'd like to discuss further.

Kind regards,

Many thanks for sending this through and pulling it all together.

Wondering if it's possible to hold off sending to DSTG until Wednesday? (Tomorrow is my usual day off parenting). I'm conscious you're keen to keep things moving, so I'll prioritise looking at it in the morning and come back to you as soon as I can.

Let me know if any issues.

Confirming this is fine from our perspective and we have nothing to add (minor typo in the s 47G where DSTG has been misspelled, but that's me being extraordinarily picky). Welcome this going to DSTG so you can both progress the matter. We remain very ready to support EFA and DSTG to s47G

Hi all,

Thanks for your time this morning. s 47C

I wanted to bring to your attention the episode of the ABC's "Dead and Alive" podcast published this morning. Stela Todorovic (Media Director, PQ Aus) was featured where she discussed PQ's project in the larger context of "hype" in scientific breakthroughs and what it means for quantum computing.

Of note, Stela told the host that the current goal remains for the "site to be up and running" by 2027 and for the "quantum computer itself to be switched on" by 2030. She said the project is ambitious but achievable, that everyone wants to see the project succeed and the "proof will be in the pudding".

Background

- This was the fourth and final episode of the Dead and Alive Podcast focusing on quantum computing. Professor Geoff Pryde (CTO, PQ Aus) was featured in episode 3 which discussed Australia's history with quantum computing.
 - The ABC have complemented the podcast with other quantum-focused content including their "Download this Show" radio program and articles on ABC news.
- The discussion highlighted steady progress in making quantum computers larger and more reliable, with optimistic estimates suggesting around five years, while more cautious views place useful large-scale systems in the early to mid-2030s.

Good morning ^{s 22} and ^{s 22}

I hope you are both well. You may recall that in our last catch up our team flagged that the next quarterly Ministerial Submission was being prepared. For your awareness, we are hoping to send it to you Friday/Monday to clear content relevant to your team.

To support this, are there any updates on the ^{s 47G}

We are also aware that ^{s 47G}

, we would be grateful for that information.

Kind regards,

Hi both,

I return to haunt your inboxes! I hope you've had a lovely almost-year since we last spoke. I started back in the office today in my old role (humungous thank you to s 22 amazing work!) and suspect it's going to take quite a while to get my head back around everything, but lets see how we go.

I wanted to quickly ask if there was anything it would be worth me having in mind for tomorrow's s 47G I wouldn't usually attend but Jo is unwell so I'm going to sit in for her. I note s 22 mentioned below that s 47G

. I expect this continues to sit with EFA as the leads, but thought I'd check in anyway in case there's something we can help with or that would be helpful to be aware of before tomorrow.

Many thanks and lovely to be back working with you!

Cheers,

Hi s 22

s 47G

. Thanks for the heads up.

s 22 – likewise, lovely speaking to you on the phone yesterday – the below approach sounds fine & I'll look to set up another EFA/DISR/DFAT catch up either tomorrow or next Monday.

Cheers
