Exported from the People's Republic of China
Finding in relation to a continuation inquiry
Continuation of anti-dumping measures

Customs Act 1901 – Part XVB

The Australian Customs and Border Protection Service (Customs and Border Protection) has completed its inquiry into whether the expiration of the anti-dumping measures applying to 2,4-Dichlorophenoxyacetic acid (2,4-D) exported to Australia from the People's Republic of China (China) would lead, or would be likely to lead to, a continuation of, or a recurrence of, the dumping and the material injury that the measures are intended to prevent.

Customs and Border Protection reported its findings and recommendation to the Minister for Home Affairs (the Minister) in International Trade Remedies Branch Report No. 189A (REP 189A). The Minister has considered REP 189A and has accepted Customs and Border Protection's recommendation therein.

The Minister has declared that he has decided to take steps to secure the continuation of anti-dumping measures currently applying to 2,4-D exported to Australia from China. These measures will continue for a further five years from 25 March 2013, unless revoked earlier.

Notice of the Minister's decision was published in The Australian newspaper and the Commonwealth of Australia Gazette on 31 January 2013.

The reasons for the recommendation and material findings of fact and law in relation to the continuation inquiry are contained in REP 189A. REP 189A can be obtained from Customs and Border Protection's internet site at www.customs.gov.au or on request from the International Trade Remedies Branch on telephone (02) 6275 6547.
